“This course offered valuable information that I found useful in my present position and also provided me with the skills to advance my career. The instructors were both knowledgeable in all of the subjects and were always available to address any questions I had during the course. I strongly encourage this certificate program to anyone who is interested in furthering their career in auditing, also the online option makes this an excellent choice for those who are currently working professionals.”

– Adriannia D. Vaughns, Sr. Internal Auditor, TIAA-CREF

“All three courses in the Forensic Accounting certificate program were well done and challenging. Excellent learning opportunity with incredible support staff. All people I interacted with from course advisors to the IT help desk were very helpful, considerate, friendly and extremely professional and patient. I would not hesitate to recommend this program, these people, and this institution to anyone, anywhere.”

– Katheryn Pizzale, Senior Audit Technical Administrative Manager, Claus J. Joyer, C.A.

Forensic accounting is the integration of accounting, auditing and investigative skills, to assist in legal matters. Forensic accounting involves looking beyond the numbers to grasping the substance of situations. It’s more than accounting and more than detective work. It is the application of a specialized body of knowledge to economic transaction analysis and reporting. Forensic accountants may also provide expert testimony in the courtroom or provide litigation support to clients.

According to the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants, there has not only been an increasing demand since the 1990s for accountants to possess specialized forensic knowledge and experience, but also the definition of forensic accounting is continuing to expand beyond just that of fraud detection (AICPA, Characteristics and Skills of the Forensic Accountant). Although the program focuses primarily on forensic accounting related to fraud and financial crime, forensic accounting within civil matters such as business valuation will also be reviewed.

The cross-disciplinary nature of these courses means that non-accounting professionals will also find the courses beneficial. The courses are designed to be of interest to individuals wishing to protect themselves or their organizations against fraud. The courses are skills-oriented in the investigation of fraud and other irregularities in today’s business world.
